

TODAY'S TID-BIT

Did you know...

That some air conditioners do not have to be noisy when they start or stop? Some air conditioning units have a variable speed fan that speeds up and down slowly. There are different settings on the fan motor. If the fan is not set to the varying speed setting, it may cause noise. An air conditioning service technician can change the setting.